Great Learning! SAFE CFI-PRO™ Workshop (Oct 2-3 @ AOPA KFDK) Improving All Aviation Educators (CFIs)

"Aviation educators (CFIs) are the primary 'influencers' in our industry and increasing their professionalism improves the safety of every pilot and by extension our whole aviation industry - it has an exponential effect" said SAFE Executive Director David St George.

SAFE is a not-for-profit with a 10-year track record of improving aviation. They are taking their mission of educator excellence on the road with the CFI-PRO™ Workshop at AOPA FDK, October 2nd and 3rd. "We have four veteran DPEs among our presenters and we are trying to share what we see - and what could be done better; there is room for improvement"

SAFE has developed an "Extended Envelope Training" for GA to improve the capability (and safety) of the average pilot and combat Loss of Control Inflight "EET is now required in the airlines to combat loss of control" said St. George. "We are bringing a unique syllabus to the GA community and it can be flown in any training aircraft." he said.

The $375 price of admission defrays the cost of presenter transportation and accommodations and provides two action-packed days of seminars and interactive break-out sessions. Included are morning coffee (and carbs) with lunch provided and a special networking dinner at the National Aviation Community Center (with all kinds of fun aircraft). "You will be able to tour AOPA and network with the staff at the event" said St. George. This is about sharing among all of us the best practices and techniques from years of flying. "We encourage committed educators to join us (even if you are still working on that CFI)" said St. George. "Check the website here and register soon."
