

We're ready to fly.

FAA Reauthorization has been delayed 15 times since expiring almost three years ago. And each temporary extension saps time and resources desperately needed to move general aviation forward.

We're a $150 billion industry—supporting more than 1.2 million jobs—and one of the few industries that provides a trade surplus for the United States. Congressional reauthorization of FAA legislation will help us:

- Create high-paying jobs for skilled workers
- Modernize the air traffic system
- Stimulate research and development
- Provide environmental benefits

It's time to fly.

Pass FAA reauthorization now.

General Aviation
Manufacturers Association

